Department of Labor Deems Movement of Social and Moral Value to Citizens All

WASHINGTON, April 11.-The own our home campaigns promulgated by the United States department of labor as a logical and sound way of stimulating business and absorbing labor, was commended to the governors and mayors in their recent Washington con-ference by Ernest T. Trigg, president of the National Federation of Construction Industries. Mr. Trigg said this activity carried on by the division of public works and construction develpriments of the United States depart-ment of labor was a constructive, practical and desirable activity, and urged the governors and mayors to get behind those campaigns in their commu-nities, Mr. Trigg said;

"You came here for the purpose of getting some constructive thought as to how you can best solve the question of giving idle labor employment and how you can best hasten the return of normal peace conditions and general prosperity.

"Hon Ernest Lister, governor of Washington, in a recent message to the legislature, made this significant re-mark:

washington, in a recent message to the legislature, made this significant remark:

"Speaking from the standpoint of the state, I believe it is our duty and responsibility so to adjust conditions that there will be employment available in the state for every able-bodied person willing to accept it. * All the responsibility for furnishing employment should not be shoved over upon governmental agencies, it is true the nation, state, counties, municipalities and other political subdivisions can assist greatly in handling the problem. But it is equally true that investors who had contemplated the srection of a business building, the individual who desired to erect a new home, the manufacturer who intended making improvements in his factory, all of whose plans were delayed by war conditions, ought now quickly to arrange their affairs that they may proceed and thus aid in providing employment for those who desire and need it. "Specifically what can a community do to be helpful in this essential revival of private building? There is one concrete program which deserves your earnest consideration, a simple program and yet one of unlimited possibilities. I refer to a local 'own your home campaign. This seems to be a logical step in every community because:

"It meets a fundamental need. The nation is short of homes. Conservative estimates say we are short 500,000 homes since the war began. Some authorities place the shortage at one million.

"The campaign is of a character that "The campaign is of a character that will call to it every substantial business and civic element m your community. Your chamber of commerce, board of trade, general organizations, your financial institutions, your religious and labor organizations, every element in your community interested in community improvement can be brought to co-operate enthusiastically in this campaign, Now, a campaign in which everybody can and will participate is the sort of a campaign we need at his time.

Home More Than House.

lives in the American home, I am not attempting to pass to you time-worn sentimentalities about the home. Rather I want to indicate that the intangible profits and returns to the home owner have in no wise been affected other than to be enhanced by the war.

"Home building is the logical first step for the further reason that building is so large a part of the entire industry of the country, and 75 to 90 per cent of the building indutry is labor. This is of profound significance when we are endeavoring to advise buffer employment for a period of industrial transition. But in addition to this overy home that is built, immediately stimulates business locally and creates the demand for materials and products in more than a hundred correlawed industries.

"It would not be difficult to enumerate a dozen other arguments as to why, a general building campaign should begin with home building. The arguments are obvious. It is more important to this conference, which is seeking concrete and specific information, to know that the department of labor, in its division of public works and construction development, has organized the facts on the home building campaign with a national vision in such fashion that it can, on your request, place an outline for a complete campaign in your hands on short notice.

"The division can provide you with definite plans for organization, it can outline and furnish newspaper articles for your publicity campaign; it can give you suggestions to finance: it can, I believe, if occasion demands, send to your community an expert to advise with you. Here is something concrete, of which your communities can avail themselves, and the possibilities in permanent community benefits are beyond calculation." would not be difficult to enumer

THE BOSTON TEA PARTY. A handful of daring Americans in the guise of Indians apparently merrymakers, but in reality history makers; demonstrating the spiritual growth of the nation's pioneers—the first outburst of democracy—the early flush of the dawn of American freedom!

The Spirit of Justice prompted the Boston Tea Party. The . same spirit now urges thrift. If we feel sympathy for our Allies, now facing the costly task of reconstruction, we will not waste.

Thrift in bread buying means you must buy the large loaf. To make it requires less labor, less fuel, less equipment. It is economical in use, also, for it has less crust in proportion, keeps better, bakes to a better texture, and is good to the last crumb.

Little savings by all run into big totals—so buy Betsy Ross Bread, made only in the large size. Betsy Ross Bread makes thrift a pleasure.

GIVE 13 EQUAL MONTHS PLANNED

Extra Month Called Liberty

nesota is the American Equal Month Calendar association, made up of law-yers, bankers and business men generally—not the class usually classified as one-idea cranks, but ordinary money-grabbing folk who would scorn being classed as "reformers."

They have set out on a slow, patient effort to do over again what civilization has done a number of times in recorded history—this time they propose to do it right—that is, to make a calendar that will be every year the same.

This will give one additional month besides the 12 we now have, which it is proposed to call the month of "Liberty."

But, as the year consists of 365 days (roughly speaking.) this yeaves one day extra. All right, they call that New Year's day, which is a holiday anyway, and they do not include it any week or month.

Then, in addition, to take care of the extra day in leap year, these men from Minneapolis propose that every four years we have a "correction day," or some call it "second new year's day"—a custom which has been generally observed in the Scandinavian countries. And as once every 100 years leap year is omitted (unless the number of the year is divisible by 400) the calendar seems fixed for all time. Due, two, three, and the trick is done!

But, the world is not all as ready to change established customs—even bad ones—as these men of Minneapolis so they have incorporated and are prepared for a long and steady pull.

They have started it off as though the new calendar was already in force these men of Minneapolis, for they have their stationary—personal stationary pfincipally—printed for a double date line, for example, as follows:

690 Minnesota avenue.

Minneapolis, Minn.

16th March, 1919 (Gregorian calendar.)

Those who get such a letter will now know what it is all about.

The study of the calendar has interested many famous men at various times, the encyclopedia tells. It is an attempt to put into a system these three hasic phenomena of common life—the year, the month and the day.

As the year depends upon the length of time the estri requires to ge round the sun one time, so the month originally depended upon the time in which the moon makes its circuit around the earth, and the day is made by the time required for the earth to make one complete turn on its axis—all facts so familiar that most of us never think about them as united into a system, called a calendar.

As the ancients had a very limited knowledge of astronomy; furthermore, had no instruments of precision, their calendar was inaccurate. They recknowledge of astronomy furthermore, had no instruments of precision, their calendar was inaccurate.
